

As a citizen of our great country I believe that this is yet another attempt by greedy corporations to strip us of our rights and/or comforts. Ever since the time that video recording devices became available people have been using them to save their favorite programs, catch something they won't be around to watch and get a few movies (that have been released to cable) for when they want to see them. I think the Television and Motion Picture industries make enough money without resorting to these cheap tactics to try to boost the sales of their video media. Furthermore, I would rather maintain my integrity and financial wellbeing by refusing to use HD television devices or television all together (if it comes to that).

Hopefully the FCC will see this for what it is - a sad attempt to increase the control of our people's personal viewing habits while bleeding us dry by making us pay to see something that we already paid (a cable bill) to see the first time. Please do not let this happen. Thank you.
